Acacia Memorial Park & Mausoleums

The History of Acacia Memorial Park

Acacia Memorial Park has been a part of the Lake City community since its dedication in 1926 by the Greater Seattle Masonic Lodge; the namesake tree symbolizes the promise of rebirth in Masonic rites. In 1927, the Lodge decided to leave the cemetery business and sold the park to Mr. Fred Burnaby and Family.

Construction of the original Acacia Mausoleum began in 1928 and the first phase was completed in 1931. Today, the original mausoleum covers 3.5 acres illuminated almost entirely by natural light. In addition to the leaded skylights, there are 29 massive works of stained glass.

In 1964, Mr. Millington, Mr. Burnaby's son-in-law, along with Mr.'s Morrison and Adams completed the current Funeral Home building and Adams and Morrison operated the funeral home until 1999.

Construction of the Lake View Mausoleum was begun in 1977 and completed in 1979, with plans for several later phases of construction (the next addition of niche walls will occur in 2008).

Complete renovation of Acacia Funeral Home was completed in June 2000, including custom glass doors and windows made by local artists, and continuous improvements continue: recently a superb audio-visual suite was installed.

Today, Acacia Memorial Park is honored to memorialize over 55,000 daughters, sons, mothers and fathers. The park is situated on 63 acres overlooking the north shore of Lake Washington. 43 acres are developed and 20 acres remain for future development, including a new garden planned for construction in 2008.
