

https://www.starbeacon.com/news/local_news/cuyahoga-county-medical-examiner-releases-name-in-officer-involved-shooting/article_2765cd76-51a2-5b45-b49b-30cc7be5a1ab.html

BREAKING

Cuyahoga County Medical Examiner releases name in officer-involved shooting

By BRIAN HAYTCHER bhaytcher@starbeacon.com
Nov 17, 2020

The Cuyahoga County Medical Examiner's office has released the name of a man who was shot by an Ashtabula County Sheriff's Deputy after allegedly pointing a shotgun at the deputy.

Douglas Rash, 44, of New Lyme, died on Nov. 10 at University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center, according to information from the Cuyahoga County Medical Examiner's office. Rash's death was reported as a police-involved suspected homicide.

The Ashtabula County Sheriff's Office received a 911 call at 8:36 p.m. on Nov. 10, stating that a subject with a gun was making threats to harm himself and shoot at the police at 707 Dodgeville Road in New Lyme Township, according to a statement from the Ashtabula County Sheriff's Office.

According to the statement, deputies arrived on scene and found a man with a shotgun in the driveway. The man refused to follow orders to drop the weapon.

The man racked the shotgun and pointed it at a deputy and the deputy shot him twice, according to the statement.

Trending Video

 See All Events Add your event

Fri, Aug 29

Sam Wint
Music
Crowing H

Sportsterz Bar & Grill

reporter